++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold, cloudy with showers then rain and hill snow today.

Today:
Scattered showers this morning, with some limited bright intervals. This afternoon longer spells of rain will develop, the rain gradually turning to snow over the Peak District. Feeling cold everywhere, especially along the Lincolnshire coast with a strong onshore wind. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Tonight:
Early rain or sleet will quickly turn to widespread snow at all levels, before scattered snow showers follow overnight. Significant accumulations are likely, especially over high ground, with icy stretches. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Sunday:
Cloudy with spells of snow for southern areas, brighter elsewhere with a few snow showers. Further accumulations of snow will develop, mainly for southern areas. Feeling bitterly cold. Coastal gales. Maximum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Scattered snow showers with further snow accumulations likely, especially Monday, and icy stretches. Despite sunshine in-between the showers it remains bitterly cold, with often brisk winds and sharp overnight frosts.
